Dr. Malik Yasir also gave brief instructions to be followed while carrying out cleanliness drive at Shehlinag Spring. After the brief introductory session in the college, the participants headed towards the designated water body for cleanliness drive.

After reaching the selected water body, NSS volunteers along with faculty members carried out cleanliness drive. Three student groups, each led by the one faculty member, were formed for smooth conduct of environmental drive. The student volunteers first cleaned the peripheries of the water body by collection of all the plastic waste and dumping them in the dustbins. Thereafter the water body was cleaned by removing all the plastic and other waste debris accumulated in the water. The inlet and outlet of the spring was also cleaned making sure that the movement of the water is smooth. In addition to the practical cleanliness drive, community awareness was also made by sensitising the local population regarding the benefits of maintaining serenity and pristineness of the water body by not allowing people to dump their waste into the water. The programme ended with the pledge by the NSS volunteers, students and faculty that they will participate in all environmental activities which are aimed to safeguard the environment. The participants were given light refreshment after their return back to the college.
